State Government. However, the Government of India has been advising the State Governments, from time to time, to give more focused attention to improving the administration of criminal justice system and to take such measures as are necessary for the prevention of crime against women and other vulnerable sections of society. The measures suggested include:—

- Sensitizing of police officials charged with the responsibility of protecting the women;
- Vigorously enfore the existing legislation relating to dowry violence;
- Set up women police cells in police stations and exclusive women police stations;
- Provide institutional support to the victims of violence;
- Provide counselling to victims of rape;
- Take measures to eliminate trafficking in women. States have also been advised to constitute State Advisory Committees to advise on trafficking matters;
- Ensure wider recruitment of women police officers;
- Train police personnel in special laws dealing with atrocities against women;
- Setting up of Fast Track Courts;
- Setting up of Family Courts; and
- Appointment of Dowry Prohibition Officers and notification of Rules under the Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961 by the State Governments.
